"SOCIAL WHIRL"

With Coffee-Insomnia and Collapse.

It seems difficult for some of us to be good all of the time, but it pays, after all.

Even a model school teacher, on a vacation, may drop into excesses in the way of overeating, late hours and black coffee to add to the irritation of the nervous system.

"I am a teacher in the university," writes a lady in Salt Lake City, "and hold a responsible and trying position. For months before my collapse I rose completely demoralized, but braced up on a cup of coffee."

"The summer vacation I spent in the east, where I participated in a whirl of social affairs. There was scarcely an evening when I did not drink strong coffee and afterwards spent hours awake."

"Finally the breakdown came and I have spent hundreds of dollars and almost two years of suffering trying to mend it."

"Every doctor I had insisted on my giving up coffee. I tried Postum, but prepared, at first, as it ought to be, and I did not care for it. Since getting it right I have found it wonderfully beneficial."

"The benefits derived from Postum the past year have been gradual, but immediate. The effect on my stomach was immediate. It was the only thing which except the white of egg that did not distress me."

"There is no doubt that coffee is injurious to many even in small quantities. To one who will make the trial, there is no doubt that Postum is decidedly beneficial and a delicious drink if made according to directions on package."

HAPPY JACK GARDNER BIG WINNER ON LATEST JAPANESE SHELL GAME

"Twenty-four years of the ups and downs of theatrical life; pocket full of yellow boys one week and not a sou for a ham bone the next. Yes, sir, that's me. And why? Just because nobody ever told me that Japanese bleeding tooth shells were absolutely, sure-thing, good luck, coaxes—that's why. I'm wise now, and after this engagement it's Happy Jack to a life of ease and luxury and diamonds for Mrs. Jack—no more coon shouting—not for me!"

"Happy Jack" Gardner believes he is going to be wealthy, just because, at a banquet given him in Los Angeles at the conclusion of his vaudeville engagement there, somebody presented him with a good luck memento in the shape of a Japanese bleeding tooth shell.

"The Japs swear by them," said Gardner last night, "but, Lord, I had to be shown. I have carried rabbit's feet in my clothes and have worn luck stones on my watch chain ever since I made my first hit in the show business, and always had bad luck. But, say, my wife had been sick ever since we started on the Orpheum circuit this year. The minute I began carrying that Jap shell around she got well. She's gaining right along—pound or two a week. Expect to have to pay excess baggage on her before we get back to New York. Been getting curtain calls, instead of vegetables, ever since I got the shell. Now, to cap the climax and make me dead certain the shell is the real goods, since I arrived in Salt Lake, I've been made a present of a lot of shares in a mining corporation that are sure to make me a millionaire, and have received word from my sisters that my mother is the sole heir to a big wad of money that was left the McCardle family in Ireland years and years ago. And mother is awfully fond of her 'Happy.'"

Mr. Gardner is a cousin of W. T. McCardle, discoverer of the copper field at Contact, Elko county, Nevada. The two, when boys, worked together on the old McCardle farm near Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. McCardle's mining ventures have panned out very well, and he is a shareholder in a number of companies incorporated for mining claims near Contact. He came to Salt Lake the other day to get incorporation papers made out for the McCardle Contact Company, and, seeing his cousin billed at the Orpheum, stayed in the city to see him. The two had not met for twenty-five years. As a result of the meeting Mr. Gardner has taken stock in the new company and expects to come to Salt Lake to learn the mining business himself after his present vaudeville dates are concluded.

"When I got in on the copper mine deal," said Gardner, "I collected a few lucky properties of the Jap shell had about been spent, but this afternoon three letters were handed to me at the box office. Each letter was from a different sister, and each sister seems to be almost crazy over the prospects of another falling heir to $50,000,000 left to the McCardle family in Ireland ninety years ago. It seems mother is the only one left who is eligible to finger the money. I don't know how that matter is coming out, but I have all kinds of faith, if I don't lose the shell, and there isn't much danger, for my wife keeps it wrapped up in chamois skin, hidden in the center of an old hair rat in the bottom of her trunk. Say, young man, if you want to get rich quick, don't go on the stage. Just get hold of one of those Japanese bleeding tooth shells."

Constipation Caused By Indigestion

Is Cured By Helping the Stomach Do Its Work as It Should.

All forms of constipation, bowel or intestinal trouble owe most of their origin to the improper digestion of food. The bowels measure thirty feet. The inside walls or surfaces are wound tightly about with millions of nerves. These nerves give life and control millions of little mouths or suckers which are supposed to take nourishment from the food as it leaves the stomach and passes along this thirty-foot human canal.

When indigestion, dyspepsia or stomach trouble occurs, the food being undigested, passes over these millions of mouths, it is a fermented decaying mass and holds no nourishment as it should. The little mouths suck it up, impart these impurities to the blood, impregnate the little nerves with poison and so the work of constipation and bowel trouble begins.

A natural juice or secretion belongs normally in the little cells and glands along the mucous membrane of the thirty-foot canal or bowels. When indigestion occurs this juice is lacking and so the mass of waste matter cannot pass along as it should and is piled up and caked in the bowel, thus bringing pain and misery. After a while the nerves and nerve centers which give vigor and life to the bowel become paralyzed, thus forever prohibiting the bowel from performing its natural duties.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, when taken after meals, digest the food properly even though the stomach is sick, and it passes to the bowels nourishment and juices, which line the intestine not only to do their work at once, but build them up, restore vitality to the nerves, brings new secretion to the glands and cells, helps bowel action and enriches the blood.

The stomach is the cause. Common sense and science are one on this point. You see it yourself, one little grain of food, a meal or one of these tablets is an easy matter and it keeps the stomach clean and sweet so that in a brief time this organ is restored.

IN THE POLICE COURT.

H. Willyud, who gave vent to his brutal rage by cruelly beating his horse over the head with a heavy iron chain, forfeited $25 bail yesterday rather than answer in the courtroom to the charge of cruelty to animals.

William Dunn, an old man and crippled in every limb, presented a pitiful spectacle when, as he stood clutching the table to support himself, he told the court that he had no home to go to. He was up on a charge of drunkenness, his first offense that brought him into the courtroom. A five-day sentence was imposed on him, as an act of charity rather than punishment, and the feeble old man seemed to view it that way, too, for as he dropped back to the bench he mumbled, "That ain't much."

Joseph Clinton, the pseudo blind man whose amputees on the streets caused him to be considered a nuisance, and who was given an opportunity to leave the city, will find, should he return to Salt Lake, a thirty-day sentence hanging over him. Tuesday at 2 o'clock was the limit of his liberty in Salt Lake, and it is presumed that he left yesterday morning.

Late Wednesday night he called Lieutenant Hempel by telephone, asking if he could remain until Saturday. He was told that he would have to see the court for such permission, but he failed to appear yesterday afternoon.

Tom Kolas, charged with battery, pleaded not guilty yesterday and will have his hearing Jan. 28.

Nine unheeding drivers of wagons were down on the docket yesterday for violating the speed ordinance. Seven of these forfeited their bail of $2 and two, who appeared in court, were taxed the same.

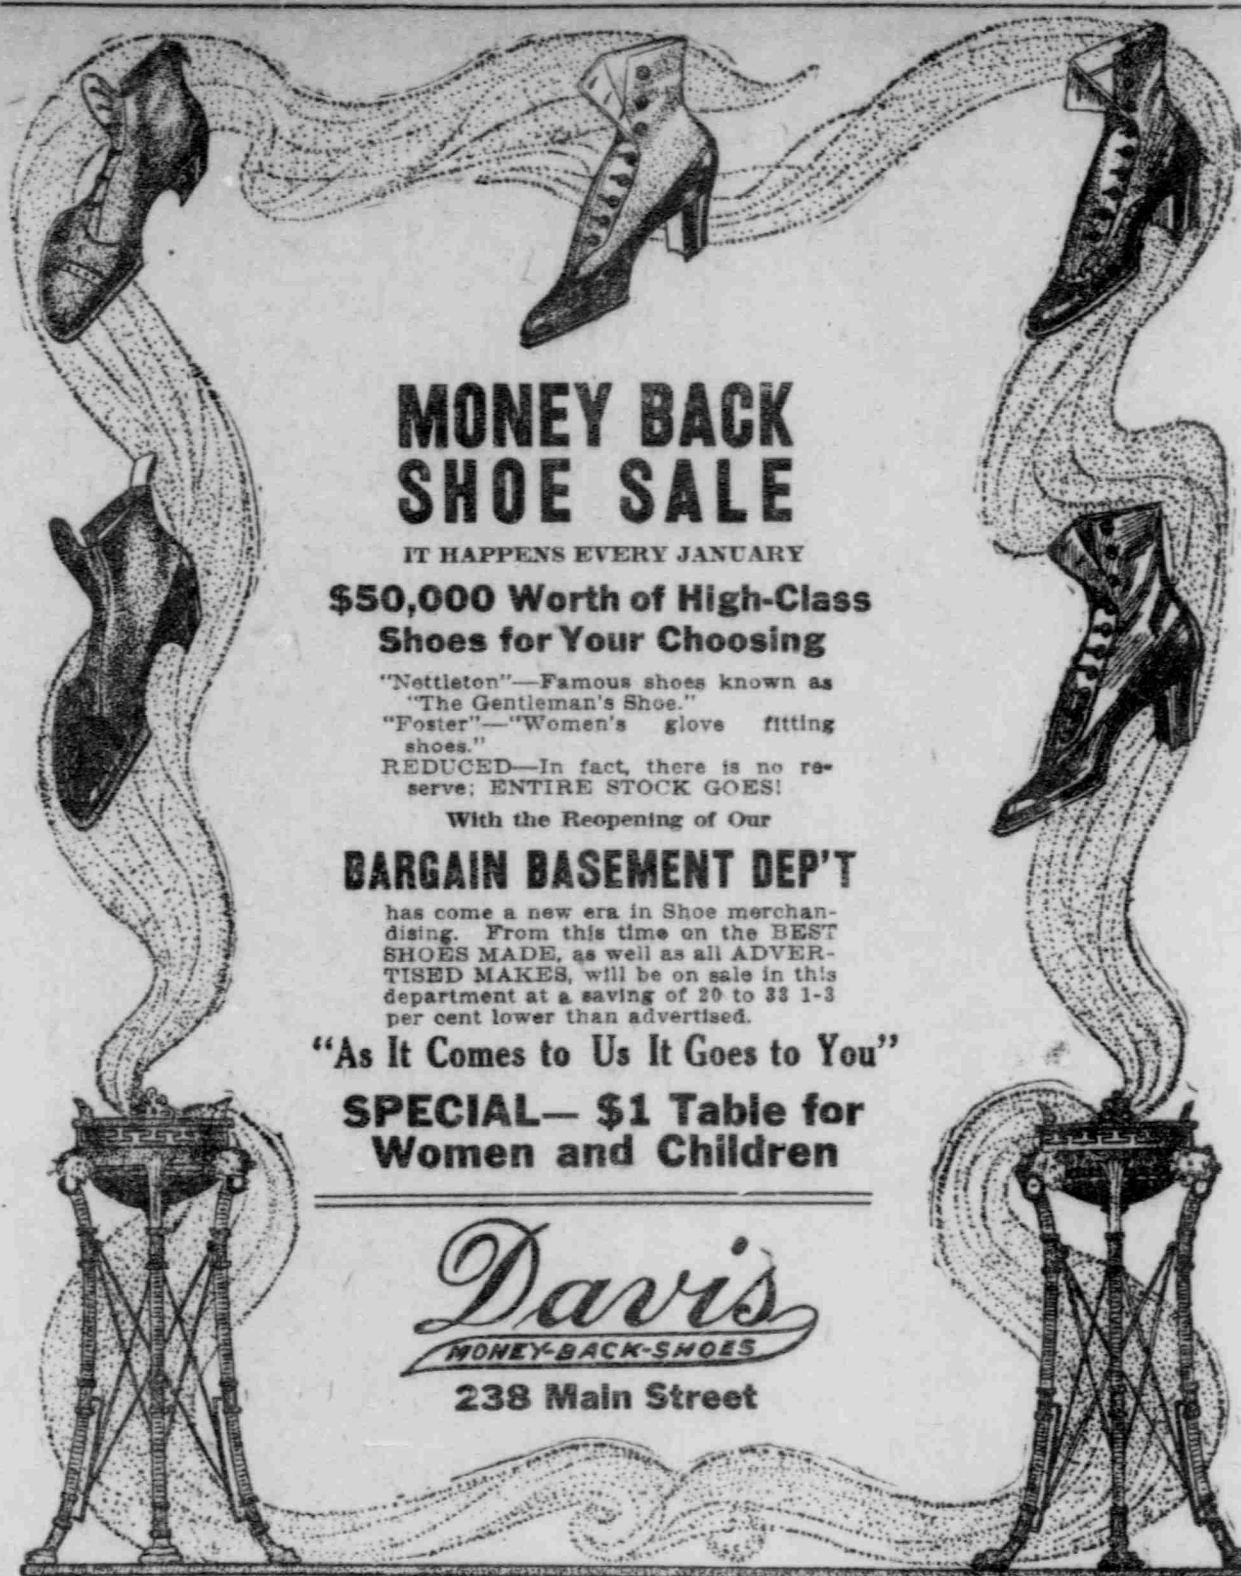

John Hornstetter had a unique excuse. He admitted that he had been driving over the street intersection faster than four miles an hour, but it was because his horse had started to run away. The excuse wasn't considered a good one.

The case against Hazel May, one of the women arrested in a recent raid, was dismissed yesterday after it was found that the prosecution lacked sufficient evidence to secure a conviction.

WIDOW STARTS SUIT.

Rebecca Dickerson Blames Fuel Company for Death of Husband.

Alleging that the Utah Fuel company supplied an unmanageable horse to Granville Dickerson, who hauled coal from the company's mine workings at Sunnyside, and was thereby responsible for causing his death, his widow, Rebecca Dickerson, is suing in the district court to compel the company to pay her $15,000. The horse driven by Dickerson ran away Jan. 22, 1908, throwing him to the ground, injuring him so that death followed. He left a widow and eight children, three being over 21 years of age, and the youngest 3 years. She files an affidavit of impecuniosity with her complaint.

A Mother Testifies

This is to certify that my daughter was down for almost one year with a cold. The doctors finally pronounced it consumption. We had given up hope for her recovery. I was given a sample bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. I gave it all to her in about three hours. It stopped the cough, and gave her rest. I sent next day and bought a soc. bottle and began giving it. In three month's time she was well. There can not be too much said in favor of Foley's Honey and Tar. It saved my child's life.
